

What is claimed is:

1. A switch unit, comprising:

5 a switch knob arranged capable of being tilted with a rotational shaft as a shaft center and provided with an automatic reset function for restoring to an original position;

a switch shaft connection shaft provided on the switch knob;

10 a switch shat being moved in accordance with an inclination restoration operation as a result of connecting to the switch shaft connection shaft;

a guide rail for guiding movement of the switch shaft in a straight line; and

15 a tact switch, arranged capable of connection and disconnection to and from the switch shaft, for electrical connection and disconnection as a result of pressure from the switch shaft, wherein 20 the tact switch has a region pressed from the switch shaft and constituted by a resilient member.